FarmRaise has launched its novel product aimed at transforming the administration of farmer-facing programs, including financial incentives and sustainability programs. This innovative solution marks a significant step forward in empowering farmers and institutions alike with user-friendly tools.

FarmRaise delivers software and educational resources that enable farmers to master their farm funding. With a deep commitment to simplifying farm-specific administrative tasks, FarmRaise develops solutions that are simpler and more impactful than existing small business management systems.

"At FarmRaise, we are dedicated to equipping farmers with the tools they need to thrive," said Jayce Hafner, CEO at FarmRaise. "Our latest software product represents a game-changer for organizations seeking to administer farmer-facing programs efficiently and effectively."

FarmRaise's newest product offers a secure and scalable web application to facilitate the administration of farmer-facing programming for financial incentives, grants and sustainability programs, including programs focused on climate smart agriculture. Institutions can now effortlessly manage farmer enrollment through a streamlined administrative dashboard.
