

Mitchells Group acquires Australia's Allied Grain Systems

22 July 2024 | News

Aims to provide comprehensive solutions to the agricultural sector and to enhance product and services portfolio using Allied Grain Systems high-quality grain handling and storage facilities

Aims to provide comprehensive solutions to the agricultural sector and to enhance product and services portfolio using Allied Grain Systems high-quality grain handling and storage facilities

The Mitchells Group, a bulk material conveying equipment provider, has acquired Allied Grain Systems, an Australian-based grain handling and storage solution provider.

The move strengthens Mitchell's position in the bulk handling and storage sector, and expands its capabilities to better serve farmers and agribusinesses in all key international markets. The acquisition aligns with Mitchell's mission to provide comprehensive solutions to the agricultural sector and aims to enhance its product and services portfolio. Allied Grain Systems is experienced in designing and installing high-quality grain handling and storage facilities.

Mitchell's CEO Mic Mittasch, expressed, "This acquisition represents a significant step forward in our growth strategy, allowing us to offer a more complete suite of products and services to our customers globally. Allied Grain Systems has a stellar reputation for quality and innovation, and we are excited to leverage their expertise to better serve the agricultural sector".

The combination of Mitchell's bulk material conveying equipment and Allied Grain Systems' specialised grain handling and storage solutions is expected to drive operational efficiencies, improve customer service, and foster innovation in product development.

Allied Grain Systems founder, John White, said " Our combined resources and expertise will create new opportunities for growth and innovation, ultimately advancing agricultural productivity".