

China, Zambia reaffirm commitment to cooperation in agriculture

22 December 2022 | News

Du Xiaohui, Chinese Ambassador to Zambia and Elias Mubanga, Zambian Minister of Small and Medium Enterprises Development made the commitment in a meeting.

Du Xiaohui, Chinese Ambassador to Zambia and Elias Mubanga, Zambian Minister of Small and Medium Enterprises Development made the commitment in a meeting.

China and Zambia have reaffirmed their commitment to deepening cooperation in the agriculture sector as well as in the small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) sector.

Du Xiaohui, Chinese Ambassador to Zambia and Elias Mubanga, Zambian Minister of Small and Medium Enterprises Development made the commitment in a meeting, according to a statement posted on the Chinese embassy's Facebook page.

China is willing to work with Zambia to innovate cooperation models in agriculture and other sectors and stimulate enterprises' vitality by strengthening cooperation, Du said.

Mubanga said the Zambian government values communication and cooperation with China and is looking forward to enhancing cooperation in agriculture and SMEs.

Zambia is looking at boosting cooperation to promote the development of the entire agricultural industry chain and improve productivity through the introduction of Chinese capital and technology, Mubanga said.